PETA (People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals):

Norfolk, VA

Historically, PETA has maintained a close relationship with ALF. PETA professes to avoid illegal activity and prefers to further its agenda through public education, legislation, and other legal means. However, PETA has implicitly supported previous incidents of illegal activity on the part of militant animal rights group, and wholeheartedly supports ALF philosophy and objectives. Following a 1993 incident in Chicago in which incendiary devices were placed in numerous department stores, PETA's then-Director Dan Matthews stated in an interview, "As you know, PETA organizes legal campaigns. But we understand what drives activists to this kind of action. We won't condemn or condone it."⁸ PETA's current Director, Alex Pacheco, conveys an even firmer pro-ALF stance, claiming that "...arson, property destruction, burglary, and theft are 'acceptable' crimes when used for the animal cause."⁹

PETA's support for ALF goes far beyond mere rhetoric. Drawing upon substantial financial resources, PETA finances legal defense for ALF activists who are arrested. One of the most highly publicized ALF cases was the 1992 arson of offices at Michigan State University, mentioned previously. Subsequent to [redacted]

[redacted] While no substantive proof exists connecting PETA money to bombings, arson, or acts of vandalism on the part of ALF activists, it is reasonable to suspect that some of PETA's substantial resources have financed the activities of ALF cells.

CART (Coition to Abolish the Fur Trade)

Dallas, TX; Memphis, TN

Similar to PETA, CAFT serves in a support capacity for ALF activities nationwide. CAFT has neither the funding nor the political influence of PETA, but may actually be more intricately involved in logistical support for direct action [redacted]

[redacted] Like PETA, CAFT advocates legal demonstration and peaceful civil disobedience, but publicly downplays its support for criminal activity.
